"The time has come to talk of many things:
of shoes and ships and sealing wax-of cabbages and kings."

Though the Student Council agenda rarely covered this wide a variety of subjects in coordinating the activities of the student body, it often concerned itself with topics as diverse as those discussed by the Walrus. By taking an active part in these discussions, students were given a representative voice in the decision-making procedures of the school.

The Student Union has proved this year that it is the people, not the place, that make a party fun. With good entertainment, refreshments, and cafeteria-disguising decorations, the Student Union succeeded in making the year's parties quite enjoyable. It also organized and publicized: Giant Gym Nights 1 and 2, the Christmas Toy Drive, the Student-Faculty games, the activities of the Pep Club and all other U-High social events.

STUDENT BOARD

Frank M. Hubbard said; "The reason the way of the transgressor is so hard is because it's so crowded."

The Student Board endeavored to make the way less crowded by helping students understand and obey school rules. This "help" often came in the forms of lunchroom duty and window washing, giving the students ample reason to respect the authority of Board monitors . . .

At 9:03 A.M. on a Tuesday in June, a peculiar noise was heard from within Room 6. Fifty editors, managers, typists and staff members had collapsed in a tangled pyramid on the floor of the MIDWAY cubicle. They had attempted to produce a paper with straight headlines and amusing, objective, enlightening, provocative articles. They had endeavored to include more club news, spotlights, photographs and cartoons than ever before. They had served as a voice for all U-Highers. They had pasted, typed, interviewed and proofread at ungodly hours of the morning and night. The final issue of their paper had gone to press.

CONCEPT

According to Oscar Wilde, "The difference between literature and journalism is that journalism is unreadable and literature is unread."

Concept, U-High's creative effort in the literary field, proved the statement untrue by being both read and readable. In broadening its base to include on-beat as well as off-beat student writing, it has assured itself of a permanent place in the activities program.

"The World is a great ocean, upon which we encounter more tempestuous storms than calms" - Poe. It is these storms and calms that provide discussion material for the world affairs group. Formed only last year, it has provided films, speakers, and an outlet for the opinions of students who met each week armed with newspapers and magazines. With the development of a constitution, the group gained full school club status.

"Debating with the sword" was the custom in Shakespeare's day, but the U-High Debate teams, on a more civilized scale, have resolved, that organized argument should prevail. Both the Pre-freshman Debate squad and the Varsity Team were organized to foster interest and skills in the art of debate. They have participated in the Evanston, University of Illinois, and Northwestern University tournaments. As a climax, the Varsity Debate Team competed in the State Sectional Tournament.

JIMMIE SHANTIES

First on the agenda of the U-High Choral Society was the Thanksgiving Assembly at Rockefeller Chapel. In mid-December the Jimmie Shanties helped to dedicate the high school library. A twilight concert and a spring musical were scheduled. Needless to say, Jimmie Shanties assisted at Commencement. A fine group of voices under the excellent direction of Mrs. Irwin, assisted by Mrs. Levitin, sang through a very good year

Many athletic events, school dances, assemblies, and concerts have been made more enjoyable this year through the efforts of Robert Mason and his orchestra and dance band groups. The orchestra has played a wide repertoire of classical and semi-classical music; the dance band artists have specialized in dance-music and jazz.

In an isolated turret of Belfield tower—morning, afternoon, and evening—some sort of activity was taking place: either casting, rehearsing, costuming, or memorizing. The hours spent in organizing resulted in two or three hours of actual performance. All U-High students with an urge for acting found themselves at home in this remote tower.

The questions "Why" and "How" have been asked more times than can be remembered. They are the favorite questions of children, wise men, and U-Highers. Such questions typically range from ". . . but how do I go to Stineways and get my homework done too . . . ?" to others like the following posed by the Science and Math Clubs:

"How are rare gas compounds formed?"

The answers to these questions were obtained through a field trip to Argonne Laboratories, a lecture, and an article in the Math-Science Journal (a joint publication which reached new heights this year). Other interesting topics were explored through a program of lectures, demonstrations, and field trips designed to acquaint the inquiring mind with the varied fields of Science.

"Why does a square have more degrees of symmetry than a rectangle?"

The student with questions like these could get the answers from a specialist in mathematics education by attending Math Club meetings. By presenting lectures, discussions, and contests the Math Club showed the range and interesting nature of Mathematics.

RUSSIAN CLUB

U-High has four foreign language groups. The newest is the Russian Club, only formed this year. The busiest was the French Club; its activities included publishing the Fleur de Lis, visiting the Versailles exhibit at the Art Institute, and creating the Bazaar-nival's French Cafe. The German Club kept abreast of current events in West Berlin, attended a German play, and climaxed the year with the German Club Spring Picnic. The Latin Club, which its president claims "is not a group of crusty old scholars studying obsolete verbs and idioms," published Latina Acta, and centered most meetings on the subject of Roman culture and history.

TAC, or Teachers Assistance Corps, was organized experimentally this year to assist teachers in need of volunteer help. For their services around the school, participating students received an award at the end of the year and mention of their work on their high-school transcript.

Where TAC is concerned, the motto of the faculty seems to be: "The best way to get on in the world is to make people believe it is to their advantage to help you." -La Bruyere. As a result of this, the students' motto has become: "It is no disgrace to be poor, but it might as well be." -Hubbard.

U-High's student body reflected diverse interests in its many special activities. 1963 saw the resurrection of the Bazaarnival, a welcome change after the sometimes dull Follies. Other charitable efforts were the Foster Child Clothing Collection, the Student Council Fund Drive and two clothing sales, sponsored by the parents.

There were fewer assemblies this year. The Jazz Concert was exciting and the dance band skillfully presented a wide range of material. However, the lecture from Bell Telephone tended to be a bit too commercial.

Dinny and the Witches, the unusual choice for the Senior Play, was presented by an enthusiastic Senior Class. U-High's parents sponsored two Gilbert and Sullivan operettas: Trial by Jury and H.M.S. Pinafore. The Jimmy Shanties, with help from the Student Council and Student Union, put on a full length Broadway musical: Finian's Rainbow.

Lillie House tournament trophies were awarded in chess, bridge, ping pong, billiards and bumper pool to the school champions. U-High's track team tied for first at the Oak Park Relays.

With a rebuilding job to do and only a few weeks practice before the first game, U-High's soccer team got off to a bad start. However, by midseason much of the Maroon's potential had developed. The team began to work and play as a unit. As a result; it put on an inspired drive in the second half of the season and only missed a .500 record in the final game against Lake Forest (tied 1-1).

Players named for All-State honors were: Stan Hanover, first string; Bill Williams, second string; and Sean Cardenas, Dan Heekin, John Lewis, Dan Pekarsky, honorable mention.

U-High's Varsity Maroons came through this year with another winning record. A 10-4 finish earned them a second place tie in the P.S.L. White Division. The team was sparked by high-scoring forward Dan Heekin and Co-Captain Bill Williams. Prospects look bright for next year; ten players from this year's roster will return as Seniors. The Frosh-Soph, after a slow start, brought their P.S.L. record to 7-7, winning six of their last nine games. Leading the scorers was Captain Jon Friedberg. Next year should see a strong team; three starting Freshmen from this year will return.

U-High's Submaroons concluded a successful season by recapturing the PSL Championship. This marked the fourth year out of the last five they have held it. Outstanding seniors such as Captain Bob Block, Rod Dalitz, Bill Parsons, and David Rehage consistently won their races and broke several records. Despite their loss, next year's team looks good, with freshmen Mark Madorin and Jeff Stern leading an experienced group.

The PSL Relays climaxed a successful indoor track season for U-High. Under the direction of Coach Busch, the team finished with a 9-4 record. Senior Ylo Ormiste and junior Martin Cornelius were high point men, and they were backed by a team with both experience and depth. In addition to beating some of the best public school teams, U-High ran well in the first Mt. Carmel Relays. It captured first place in Class C of the Oak Park Relays for the second year in a row. The outdoor squad, with most indoor team members and some additions from other sports, once again sought the elusive PSL Championship.

Experience was the deciding factor this year in tennis. Both Doug Meiklejohn and Dan Heekin, the one-two men, moved up to new positions. The doubles team, however, was chosen from relatively inexperienced players. U-High's chances for a repeat title depended on the strength and consistency of the doubles. All in all, Coach Sward promised a tougher and more exciting season.

With a large number of returning members, the baseball team promised to be one of the most experienced at U-High for some time. Although the squad had a good core of pitching, supplied by such able hurlers as Bill Williams and Jim Gerwin, hitting remained a question mark. With the help of some promising sophomores, the steady play of the team, and a few lucky breaks, Coach Tourlas felt that the team had a chance for the championship.

U-High's varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders, coached by Miss Tetar, were generally considered the best in the league. Their well planned cheers and high spirits boosted morale to a peak and entertained the crowds during halftime. Captains Dottie Fleming and Nancy Gist led the squads.
